

Workplace Romance and Relationships Policy

Diane Lane-Hutchings

HR Manager

Published 12/1/2020

Peer-to-peer romantic relationships or encounters are permitted, provided that one employee does not report directly to the other, and one employee is not subordinate to the other in the organization chart. Failure to abide by these conditions is grounds for termination of the more senior staff, or both employees.

All romantic relationships or encounters between staff must be disclosed to the HR Manager, who may deem it appropriate to communicate this to the relevant Manager(s). In such instances, CPCS Management may make changes to the roles, responsibilities and/or home Division/Unit of the staff in question to ensure a productive work environment. Such changes would be made in consultation with the staff in question
